Apple v Blackberry

Apple and Blackberry battle it out on innovative online mobile index DozenMobile.com

Mobile giants Apple and Blackberry are fighting it out for Top spot on new online mobile index DozenMobile.com.

Apple.com/iphone, the official site of Apple's iPhone – the cell phone that has literally taken the world by storm and has set the bar for Smartphones sky high - was selected as the Top website in the mobile phones category. But surprisingly, in the mobile apps category, Blackberry's AppWorld site was graded higher than Apple's App Store (apple.com/iphone/apps-for-iphone).

Despite the fact Apple's App store offers 140,000 apps, the editors at DozenMobile.com found the Blackberry site more user-friendly with its cool, slick design. BlackBerry's Owner's Lounge, designed like a first-class travelers lounge in the airport, was particularly impressive as it offers users a place to share tips and tricks on their mobile applications with the like-minded Blackberry elite.

But in the ever-changing mobile universe, competition is hot and Apple's iPhone site also has to compete with the incredible, groundbreaking site DroidDoes.com. Much like the actual Motorola Droid cell phone, DroidDoes.com has a futuristic design and lots of cool elements such as a 360 degree menu that will get your head in a spin!

“The mobile world continually evolves in new online environments. Of course, Apple's iPhone site was bound to feature highly in our rankings at DozenMobile.com. But this is an ultra-competitive market and Apple's dominance is challenged mightily by sites such as DroidDoes.com and Blackberry AppWorld. Watch this space as the mobile race heats up.”

– Daniel Raz, Editor at DozenMobile.com
